ESTABLISHED 1878.

ST. ANNE, ILLINOIS, FRIDAY, JUNE 27, 1913.

VOL. 24, No. 7.

LOOKS LIKE FOUL PLAY.

A Former Resident of This Place Found
Floating in Lake Michigan.

Simon Frigon, of Chicago left his home about 8 o'clock on the morning of June 4th to go to Englewood on a little business matter, and was never seen again by any of his relatives or friends. When he left home he was in his usual cheerful mood and in the best of health. When he did not return home in the evening inquiry was made and it was found that he never arrived at his intended destination in Englewood, and still further search and inquiry by his family and the assistance of the entire police and detective force of Chicago failed to reveal any traces of his whereabouts until about two weeks after his mysterious disappearance, a tug boat four miles out in Lake Michigan found a badly decomposed body of a man floating in the lake. It was brought to the morgue, and a coroners inquest held but nothing was brought out at the investigation that would lead to its identification. There was absolutely nothing on or about the body by which strangers might designate who the deceased was.

All this time the family, under the terrible strain of anxiety and hope was leaving nothing undone to solve the mystery of his disappearance. Last Sunday afternoon L. Aug. Ducharme, a son in-law, of this place, and Harvey Frigon, a son of the deceased, of Kankakee, went to the morgue in a faint hope that the father might be found there. And although the body was in such a condition as to be almost beyond identification, they positively identified it by his teeth, by his finger nails, by his moustache, and a leg that had been formerly broken. That he had met with foul play was evidenced by an ugly looking wound across the right temple, as also the further fact that it was positively known that when he left home he had in his pockets a small amount of money, a watch, a bunch of keys, and some papers by which he might have been identified, but there was absolutely nothing found in his pockets when the body was discovered.

For the past twelve years Mr. Frigon has lived in Chicago, but for many years lived on a farm near Beaverville. From there he moved to St Anne, where he conducted a meat market for two years, when he moved to Chicago. The deceased made frequent visits here and at Beaverville where he was well and favorably known, and where he had many friends who will be sorry to learn of his untimely death.

The deceased was about 60 years of age and was a member of the Modern Woodmen camp and of the Mutual Protective League of this place.

He leaves a wife and five children, as follows: Harvey Frigon, of Kankakee Mrs. L. Aug. Ducharme, of this place Mrs. Fred Frechette, Edward and Lou Frigon, of Chicago, to all of whom is extended the deepest sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.

The remains were taken to Beaverville on Wednesday where the funeral services were held at the Catholic church and interment in the Catholic cemetery.
