THE ABITIBI PIONEERS

II - Ivanhoë Frigon jr

Pierre Frigon (4)

To complete our account of some of the events surrounding Ivanhoë Frigon II's life, the following is a text taken from a volume in the collection Biographies canadiennes françaises, page 103. (Since we were unable to find this book at the National Library, more precision is not possible.)

Born in Western Canada, Mr. Ivanhoë Frigon Jr, a furniture retailer, was adopted by his uncle, Mr.

Ivanhoë Frigon, a pioneer of the Abitibi Region, when he was hardly one year old and went to live with him in Amos, Quebec.

He was born in Domremy,

Laurent College in Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa University in Ottawa, Ontario. He completed his commercial diploma in French and in English. Following his studies he worked for one year in Amos at his adoptive father's store, then as a clerk at Germain Samson's business in Preissac Afterwards he worked for two years in Oskalaneo, as an accountant in the large forestry operations belonging to J.B.Lebel. The two years spent in the forest allowed him to save some money, which he later invested in a business, money that he obviously knew how to manage and multiply. Early in the fall of 1944 he opened a knick-knack and gift shop right in the heart of the commercial district in Amos. The

Gérald Frigon (116)

The articles in today's bulletin bring us back to the heroic times of the pioneers.

To begin with there was the fur trade, the first commercial endeavour in New France. It is a well-known fact that the primary objective of expeditions like those of Cadilllac, Radisson, Iberville, etc. was to find new suppliers of fur of the highest quality. Batiscan was a route towards the North, until the voyageurs began going up the Outaouais (River) to James Bay and towards the south via (Lake) Michigan to the Illinois (River) and as far as Louisiana via the Mississippi.

Then, there was the cultivation of the land (in its broadest sense), which, after the second term of Jean Talon's intendancy, became an industry employing half of the country's available manpower, thanks to the people of New France's quest for self-sufficiency; this continued until the middle of the last century.

During the past century and a half, the mechanical industries developed and attracted a large number of Frigons in Quebec as well as in New England, for the descendants of François have a taste for making things (rather than talk).

One hundred years from now they will talk about the century of service and information technology that was ours. What will have been the contribution of the Frigons? Will we have left our mark?

following year he added the whole line of furniture. The progressive and rapid growth of his business in 1940 him gave possibility of constructing one of the most beautiful buildings of the region on 1st Avenue in Amos. He sold furniture. electrical appliances, various brands of radios, records and record players, motorcycles. motorboats and sports articles for an interesting clientele. Being a former baseball and hockey player who had known fame as a player, he sponsored sports of all kinds. Work was his favourite pastime. However he appreciated the time he could spend at his country home at Lac Beauchamp."

The Rotary Club is composed of a group of businessmen and contributes to various social causes. "Today, the extended Rotary Family is involved in 157 countries and includes over one million members spread out in some 28,000 clubs."² the Amos Rotary Club received the charter confirming their adhesion to Rotary International. Ivanhoë Frigon Jr was President of the Amos Rotary Club in 1963-64.

"Many projects came to be, thanks to the intervention of the Amos Rotary Club. Among others, there were the Paul Carrière Pavilion or the second ice rink of the Amos Sports Complex to which the Rotary Club granted $70,000 in 1983; the Foyer Harricana bus, used to transport elderly people that received a donation of $24,000 in 1986, and the Maison des Jeunes (Youth Home) that received $35,000

In 1987, Ivanhoë Frigon Jr received the Paul Harris Fellowship Award.

We could not complete our survey without mentioning the contribution of Ivanhoë Frigon Jr's spouse, Irène Dubois-Frigon.

Irène Dubois Frigon, born on December 26, 1926, is the daughter of Alphonse Dubois and of Marie-Anna Béliveau. Later on, her family went to live in St-Laurent, Manitoba, where she studied and completed Grade 12. Upon her return to Amos in 1944, she started to work for a telephone company, working there as a telephone operator until 1946.

After her wedding in 1947, Irène Dubois-Frigon divided her time between her family and her husband's businesses. She played a major role in their efficient functioning by looking after the accounting. During close to 45 years she was the accountant for Ivanhoë Frigon Ltd (1947-1970), La Sarre Propane Inc. (1972-1989), and Gestion Anocinq Ltd (1977-today). Since 1989, she has served as accounting supervisor for Amosphère (a hotel complex), for Hallmark Amos and for l'Entrepôt du Peintre (the Painter's Warehouse).

Despite the many responsibilities that she assumed over the years, Irène Frigon always found the time to be involved in her community. Concerned with its welfare, she was a member of the school Parents' Committee, the President and Director of the Amos Red Cross Division, and President, for many years of the Red Cross Finance Committee. She was a warden at St-Thérèse Cathedral in Amos, treasurer of the Daughters of Isabelle (a women's Church group). She also participated in the committee that prepared the Fiftieth Anniversary of Amos. Always a member of the Daughters of Isabelle, in 1970 Irène Frigon was awarded the Diocesan Order of Merit in recognition of her dedication.

Irène Dubois married Ivanhoë Frigon Jr on October 2, 1947. They have four (sic) children: Ivanhoë III, Jacques, Johanne, Ginette and Jean-Pier."⁴

Coming up next: Ivanhoë Frigon, uncle and adoptive father of Ivanhoë Jr: his life as a pioneer.

Barbentane, 1615

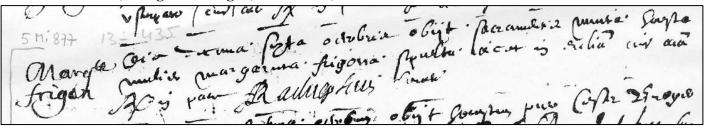

Lucie Frigon Caron (#56)

Today this chronicle brings you the death certificate of Marguerite Frigon. As was the case for the marriage certificates already brought to your attention, this one was obtained through an "Entraide généalogique" volunteer (genealogical sharing) who used the date and place as points of reference for the research.

To date, this death certificate constitutes the oldest proof of the existence of the patronymic FRIGON in France.

As you will notice, the handwriting on the certificate limits the comprehension of the text, except for the patronymic Frigon and the abbreviation of the first name which are easily identifiable in the margin. In the main part of the certificate, which was written in Latin, Frigon becomes Frigona.

Death certificate, Marguerite Frigon, October 16, 1615

Now, a few words about Barbentane, a typical old village of Provence which seems to have preserved its rich heritage. It was a seigneurie of the Archbishop of Avignon from the 12th century till the Revolution, and received the title of "city" in 1505.

Barbentane is situated a dozen kilometres south of Davignon, in Department 13 (Bouches du Rhône), Provence-Alpes-Côtes-d'Azure Region, Canton (district) of Châteaurenard.

Consult recent tourist guide books such as Le Routard; there you will find Berbentane. Among the interesting sites to be seen or visited are the Hôtel de Ville (City Hall) which is a 17th century building, the Porte Calendrale which controlled the entrance of the rampart during the Middle Ages, the Anglica Tower, the Place de l'Église (the church square), etc.

On May 18, 2002, the *French-Canadian Heritage Society of Michigan*¹ dedicated a memorial plaque on which is engraved the names of the 51 French-Canadian Voyageurs who accompanied Antoine de Lamothe Cadillac in Detroit on July 24,1701. STATE OF MICHIGAN²

"This region was originally populated by native American tribes, principally the Ottawas, the Potawatomis, the Miamis and the Hurons. The French were the first to colonize the territory. Their first establishment, St-Mary's Mission, was founded by the Jesuit priest Jacques Marquette at Sault, in 1668. In 1701, the city of Detroit was founded by Antoine de La Mothe Cadillac. The region became an active centre for fur trading. It was part of what was then known in New France as 'Les Pays d'en haut' (the upper or upstream regions), and provided channels of communication between Canada (the St. Lawrence Valley), the 'Pays de l'Ohio' (the Ohio region), the 'Pays des Illinois' (Illinois territory) and Louisiana (see the map)."

AN URGENT APPEAL TO ALL!

An invitation to make a gesture that could save the life of a Frigon "cousin": Gilles Frigon (31) of Trois-Rivières, brother of Louise Frigon (32).

Gilles has been living with bone marrow cancer for the past 4 years. Medical specialists have practically exhausted the list of treatments they can give him. There remains, however, the possibility of performing an allotransplantation, that is, a transplant of stem cells from a compatible donor.

The specialists are constantly searching in the International Blood Donor Registry for a donor perfectly compatible with Gilles, but without success.

Blood donated by a Frigon, 18-50 years of age, would increase the chances of compatibility.

The procedure is simple:

Fill in a form; give a blood sample.

Donor-recipient compatibility

If a patient needs a stem cell transplant, who is the best donor?

The characteristics of the stem cells that are transplanted must be as close as possible to those of the patient. Since these characteristics are hereditary, we look first of all for a compatible donor, i.e., a person whose genetic tissue markers are sufficiently similar to those of the patient, in the patient's family (generally a brother or sister). The chances of finding a compatible donor in the family are approximately 25%, or one in four.

this blood is for a stem-cell donation and must go to the International Blood Donor Registry

If your blood donation does not save Gilles life, it will certainly give the gift of life to someone else.
